Christian Perfection and Contemplation: According to St. Thomas Aquinas and St. John of the Cross

Raeginald Garrigou-Lagrange Timothea Doyle

In the last stanza, St. John of the Cross describes the perfection of the virtues in the soul. Until the four passions of the soul are ordered in reason according to God, and until they are ordered in love towards God, it is impossible for the soul to reach a state of perfection.